POUD PRICES TO BE LOWER, EXPERT SAYS

Pickaway-Co. Ideal Spot To Raise Potatoes, Business Men Hear.

Potatoes this year will be exceptionally low in price due to the production in Ohio, according to E. B. Tussing, extension agent at Ohio State university, who was the principal speaker at the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday night.

Due to the fact that the price of potatoes has been high for the last few years a large number of farmers have put out a large acreage and the prices will be low, the speaker explained.

Pickaway-co. does not grow high potatoes for its home markets and a large supply must be shipped in each year, the agent said.

Like any other business, potato raising is a vision, and the farmer must stick to it if he expects to succeed, he said. The speaker related number of places where no rain fallen since July and where bushel crops were reported.

CROP EXPENSES
The farmer who makes his crop 70 to 80 cents per bushel will lose money unless he has a large acreage, Mr. Tussing said. Reports of last year show that the cost of production for various yields was as follows: 500 bushel yield, cents; 400 to 500 bushel, 33.1; 350 to 400 bushel, 44.3; 300 to 350 bushel, 51.8; 250 bushel yield 56 cents; 150 to 200 bushel yield 70 cents to 80 cents or the probably selling price for this year.

In 1928 the production was 200,000 bushels and the selling price was 94 cents. In 1924 the production was 421,000 bushels and the price was 80 cents; in 1925 the production fell off, due to the fact that the price was low the year before, and the price went up to $2.06 with a production of 332,000 bushels. In 1926 the production was 354,000 bushels and the price was $1.70 with the production of 354,000 bushels and $1.20, based on a production of 370,000 bushels.

This year will be the largest potato crop ever known the agent said. The acreage should remain about the same but the production should be raised. This year 20 bushels are reported 400 bushels and other potato growers will be raising the same yields, he declared.

PICKAWAY IS IDEAL Pickaway is an ideal spot for potato growing. The early potatoes come from the south due to the early climate and then there is a break in the market before Michigan potatoes are marketed. During this break is when the pickaway-co. potatoes should find a place on the markets. Two pickaway-co. men have 400 bushels, J. C. Stevenson and J. B.
Stevenson, the latter's crop weighed 423 bushels to the acre. Potatoes should be raised after beans, or sweet clover and certified seed should be used.
His seed is raised in Michigan and is secured at a comparatively low price considering the fact the farmer is taking with seed.

Pickaway-co. can rank as high as the potato production as any county, the agent said.

M. E. MINISTERS WILL MEET HERE

Methodist ministers of Picka-
way-co. will meet Thursday, Oct.
25, in the parlors of the Circleville
Methodist church on E. Main-st.
There will be sessions in the morning, afternoon and evening.
The morning meeting will begin

the church will also be present.
The new district superintendent,
Dr. Edward Stafford of Lancaster
will have charge of the meetings.

BLAZE INTERRUPTS CHURCH SERVICES

Church was in session and the pastor was in the midst of his sermon at the Rocky Hill church, near Jackson, when a stranger appeared at the door and interrupted the sermon with the announcement: "Folks your church is on fire."
The congregation fled out and found the roof had been ignited by sparks from the chimney. The blaze was extinguished with no

Pittsburgh Woman Addresses Democratic Rally In Ash-
ville Tuesday.

The Democratic rally held at Ashville Tuesday night in Plum's hall was a huge success with a large crowd in attendance including a fair representation of women.
The Ashville band played some
"peppy" music which made the rally a real Democrat get-together.

The prominent speakers of the evening included Mrs. Gertrude B.
Fuller of Pittsburgh, Penn., sent by the Democratic national committee of Washington, D. C., and Hon. Fred M. Bushnell, Democratic candidate for treasurer of state. Each county candidate present was also called on for a few words.

Mr. Bushnell's speech dealt mostly with the state affairs and the state candidates.

Mrs. Fuller is one of the most forceful women speakers in the country, and her speech, in style, delicacy, substance, and force-fulness was paramount.

ATTACKS MELLON

"If Al Smith is elected president of the United States, he will not select the greatest distiller in the country to enforce the prohibition amendment; he will not select a man to enforce the prohibition laws
who has made his millions 'Coming Through the Old Overholt Rye,'" Mrs. Fuller said. Mrs. Fuller is
a staunch advocate of prohibition, and she declared that she originally opposed Gov. Smith because of his supposed vice beliefs, but that her observations of the last year have convinced her that the last seven years have been the worst in the history of the country.

"On every hand," she said,
"there is nothing to be seen but wholesale violation of the law and the utmost disrespect for the constitution of the nation for which our forefathers fought and died."

Not only is the constitution defied by the corrupt liquor interests, but it is defied by the spellbinder of the Republican party who have, Mrs. Fuller charged, un-loosed a flood of filthy bigotry that may have far reaching effects in the land. Anyone who preaches bigotry is simply laying the foundation for civil war, she exclaimed.

"This country was founded as a haven for those who suffered religious oppression in their native lands. Our constitution declares that 'no man shall be barred from holding office because of his religious affiliations' and the crowning glory of the Stars and Stripes is that all peoples, regardless of race or creed, can live side by side, worshipping God in their own way and according to the dictates

COMPARES CANDIDATES

Comparing the rival candidates, Mrs. Fuller pointed out that Hoover was absolutely sincere in his belief that good could be accomplished only through the medium of large and powerful corporations.

"His training would give him that belief," she said. "He has been an engineer and has always worked for and been associated with great capitalists and he knows nothing else. Mr. Hoover has never held an elective office
and less than ten years ago he was not even sure what political faith he espoused. It took a cabinet appointment to convince him that he was a Republican."

"Gov. Smith is a man with a long record as a public servant,
and his record in office, like his personal record, is an open book that may be scanned without the slightest blush being found."

"He is a firm supporter of all welfare laws and has repeatedly gone forth to battle the corrupt
and greedy corporations that would crush the working man and women."
Mrs. Fuller recalled that she had been reared in a Republican family, but that she had changed her political affiliations when she saw that Republican rule was degenerating with each succeeding year. When the overpowering stench of corruption was becoming more noxious than the average person could bear.

Martian Maid Fails To Hear Radio Message

LONDON, Oct. 24.—Dr. Mansfield Robinson may attempt to communicate with Mars again, but he had better not try it while his wife is around.

Mrs. Robinson, interviewed in her home at Roydon today, after the failure of her husband's attempt to establish radio communication with our sister planet, made
more of that foolishness in this house."

Shortly after Oonarru, the six-foot Martian maiden with whom Robinson was attempting to communicate, sent him a telephatic message advising him to go to bed. Mrs. Robinson also handed out some advice.

PUTS FOOT DOWN

"I don't know anything about this Mars affair," she told newspapermen. "I have refused to have the experiments conducted in this house while I remain in it.
I don't know whether anyone encouraged my husband, but there will be no more of that foolishness in this house."

Oonarru, the "girl with the big ears and the sweet face" who, according to Robinson, guided his etherial body on its last trip to Mars, sent condolences after informing Robinson that neither of the radio messages which he sent out from the Rugby radio station had reached Mars.

Eight minutes after Robinson's two messages—"love to Mars from earth" and "God is love"—went crackling across the ether, Prof.
A. M. Low, well known scientist, received an undecipherable message in telegraphic code over his radio.

Low had invited a United Press correspondent and several friends
to wait at his home in an attempt to pick up an answer to Robinson's messages. The party gathered in front of the fire, told ghost stories and drank toasts to the planet Mars.

Suddenly dots and dashes came in over the radio.

"It was a very mysterious message," Low said. "It is hardly likely that it could have been Mars, however. I must confess I do not know who sent it. One striking thing is that it was not
an ordinary morse message, but
a long series of undecipherable dots and dashes. For example, there were eleven dots followed by three dashes."

STOCK YARDS HERE VISITED

Delegates From Co-operative Associations Inspect Local

The Circleville stock yards, operated co-operatively by farmers of Pickaway-co. were visited Tuesday by delegates from the Ohio
Live Stock Co-operative Association, Ohio Farm Bureau, National Livestock Producers association,
National Livestock producers
Feeder Pool and Eastern States
Co., and other livestock cooperative marketing concerns subsidiary to the Ohio farm bureau.

After looking over the farm bureau home, Harry J. Briggs, service manager and H. S. Lewis, county agent, discussed with the delegates the set-up in Pickawayco. and the methods employed here in the livestock marketing program.

Those receiving the delegates were J. B. Stevenson, president of the livestock board of the farm bureau; George Gearhart, John Fry and Harry Reiterman.

After visiting the stock yards
the delegation left for Washington, C. H. to visit the yards of the Fayette-co. producers, under the direction of J. H. Jefferson manager of the cooperative association there.

Governor Wins Chicago, But Falters Elsewhere, Reports Indicate.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Except
here in Chicago where Governor Smith achieved a great personal triumph, his western campaign has been a disappointment to many of his supporters, who are now placing their hope for his success entirely upon his battle on the Atlantic seaboard.

Massachusetts, New Jersey and Maryland may almost be said to hold the fate of Smith in their keeping. If he should carry them, it is conceivable he would win;
without at least two of them it is difficult to see how he can. This is the judgment of most impartial observers of this unique campaign.

Chicago still is echoing the cheers and enthusiasm which Smith aroused here a few days ago. Republicans concede him the city. It is normally Republican but it is wet and it is for Smith.
It admires Smith and loves him.

Leaving Chicago, however, this
enthusiasm rapidly diminishes.
Few believe he can carry Illinois due to the strong down-state Republican vote.

The surrounding states which
the United Press correspondent
has just travelled through show, except Wisconsin and Nebraska,
little likelihood of going for Smith.
Innate Republicanism, religion and prohibition are counted upon to save them for Hoover. Both Dakotas, Minnesota and Iowa are apparently for Hoover. Nebraska is somewhat more doubtful and if Senator Norris, as is expected, declares emphatically for Smith this week, it may turn the state Democratic.

Auto Filled With Merchandise

Three young men said to be on a pilgrimage of plunder through the middle west, had their journey stopped Wednesday morning when Sheriff Frank Davis and Deputy Carl Porter picked them up on the Darbyville pike a short distance from town, where they were stopped by two flat tires.

The trio was riding in a Chrysler roadster said to be stolen from Sprouse-st., Bloomfield, N. Y. The car was stolen Sunday morning.

ROB CIGAR STORE

On their way through Marion,
O., Tuesday night they held up a cigar store on the outskirts of the town but were unable to give the name of the store. Sheriff Davis said. On that haul they secured three guns and when captured by
the sheriff were carrying a small arsenal, consisting of an old army 45 calibre pistol, two .32 calibre revolvers and a .22 calibre revolver loaded with "shot" shells.

The boys gave their names as George Timko, Walter Pope and Edward Kwaikowsky, all of Bloomfield, N. Y.
Deputy Carl Porter was told about the car and when he and the sheriff arrived on the scene the trio was asleep. In the roadster the officers found cigars, cigarettes, hams, and meat, all of which is believed to have been stolen at Marion.

DRAIN AUTO TANKS

The gas for their journey to youths said.

At the time of the arrest the car had a new Jersey license, and
the boys told the sheriff they had changed the tags.

Republican Will Throw His Support To New York
Governor.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Senator George W. Norris, Republican, of Nebraska, will endorse the candidacy of Governor Alfred E.
Smith in a speech at Omaha, Saturday night, Frederic C. Howe, executive secretary of the Progressive league for Alfred E.
Smith announced today.

Norris has refused to endorse Herbert Hoover, his party's candidate, but until now he had not indicated his attitude toward Smith.
He has been campaigning for progressive candidates for the senate and congress in the northwest, avoiding discussion of national issues.

Because of his influence in his own state and in the northwest, Senator Norris' declaration of his support of Governor Smith is expected to be an outstanding development of the campaign.

The progressive league said that a national radio hook-up had been arranged to broadcast Norris'
speech over the Columbia chain.
Norris is scheduled to speak from 9 to 10 p.m., Eastern time, or 8 to 9 p.m., Central time.

Senator Norris will devote his address to a discussion of the position of the two presidential candidates on national issues, Howe's announcement said.

150 to 200 bushel yield 70 to 80 cents or the probably selling price for this year.

In 1922 the production was
price was 94 cents; in 1924 the
production was 4,210,000 bushels
and the price was 80 cents; in 1925 the production fell off, due to the fact the price was low the

the price was $1.70 with the production at 3,540,000 bushels and in 1927, $1.20, based on a production of 7,000,000 bushels.

This year will be the largest pro-

M. E. MINISTERS WILL MEET HERE

Methodist ministers of Picka-
way-co. will meet Thursday, Oct.
25, in the parlors of the Circleville
Methodist church on E. Main-st.
There will be sessions in the morning, afternoon and evening.
The morning meeting will begin at 10 o'clock. Lay workers of the church will also be present.

Dr. Edward Stafford of Lancaster
will have charge of the meetings.

Church was in session and the
pastor was in the midst of his
sermon at the Rocky Hill church,
near Jackson, when a stranger appeared at the door and interrupted
the sermon with the announcement: "Folks your church is on fire."

The congregation filed out and found the roof had been ignited by sparks from the chimney. The blaze was extinguished with no great loss.

Democratic Rally In Ash-
ville Tuesday.

The Democratic rally held at Ashville Tuesday night in Plum's
large crowd in attendance including
a fair representation of women.
The Ashville band played some
"peppy" music which made the
rally a real Democrat get-together.

evening included Mrs. Gertrude B.
Fuller of Pittsburgh, Penn., sent
by the Democratic national committee of Washington, D. C., and Hon. Fred M. Bushnell, Democratic candidate for treasurer of state.
Each county candidate present was also called on for a few words.

Mr. Bushnell's speech dealt mostly with the state affairs and the state candidates.

Mrs. Fuller is one of the most
forceful women speakers in the country, and her speech, in style,
delicacy, substance, and force-
fulness was paramount.

ATTACKS MELLON

"If Al Smith is elected president of the United States, he will not
select the greatest distiller in the country to enforce the eighteenth amendment; he will not select a man to enforce the prohibition laws
in' Through the Old Overholt Rye," Mrs. Fuller said. Mrs. Fuller is
a staunch advocate of prohibition,
and she declared that she originally opposed Gov. Smith because of his supposed wet beliefs, but that her observations in the last few years have firmly convinced her that the last seven years have been the wettest in the country of the nation.

"On every hand," she said,
"there is nothing to be seen but
wholesale violation of the law and
the utmost disrespect for the constitution of the nation for which
our forefathers fought and died."

Not only is the constitution de-
fied by the corrupt liquor interests, but it is defied by the spellbinders of the Republican party who have, Mrs. Fuller charged, un-
loosed a flood of filthy bigotry
that may have far reaching ef-
preaches bigotry is simply laying
the foundation for civil war, she exclaimed.

religious oppression in their native lands. Our constitution declares
holding office because of his religious affiliations' and the crown-
is that all peoples, regardless of
side, worshipping God in their own
way and according to the dictates

Comparing the rival candidates, Mrs. Fuller pointed out that Hoover was absolutely sincere in his belief that good could be accomplished only through the medium of large and powerful corporations.

"His training would give him
that belief," she said. "He has
with great capitalists and he knows nothing else. Mr. Hoover has never held an elective office
and less than ten years ago he
was not even sure what political faith he espoused. It took a cabinet appointment to convince him that he was a Republican."

"Gov. Smith is a man with a long record as a public servant,
and his record in office, like his
personal record, is an open book
that may be scanned without the slightest blemish being found."

"He is a firm supporter of all welfare laws and has repeatedly
and greedy corporations that
would crush the working man
and women."

Mrs. Fuller recalled that she had been reared in a Republican family, but that she had changed
generating with each succeeding
year; when the overpowering
stench of corruption was becoming more noisome than the average person could bear.

FORGETS DEMOCRATS

"Mr. Hoover says he will continue the Coolidge policies and talks of the 'prosperity' that now prevails in the land. He forgets that, if it were not for the financial structure conceived by a perpetrated fraud, (Turn to page five, please)

LONDON, Oct. 24.—Dr. Mansfield Robinson may attempt to communicate with Mars again,
but he had better not try it while
his wife is around.

Mrs. Robinson, interviewed in her home at Roydon today, after
the failure of her husband's attempt to establish radio communication with our sister planet, made
more of that foolishness in this
house."

Shortly after Oonarru, the six-
foot Martian maiden with whom Robinson was attempting to communicate, sent him a telephatic
message advising him to go to bed, Mrs. Robinson also handed out some advice.

"I don't know anything about this Mars affair," she told newspapermen. "I have refused to
have the experiments conducted in
this house while I remain in it.
I don't know whether anyone encouraged my husband, but there will be no more of that foolishness in this house."

Oonarru, the "girl with the big
ears and the sweet face" who, according to Robinson, guided his ethereal body on its last trip to Mars, sent condolences after informing Robinson that neither of
the radio messages which he sent
out from the Rugby radio station

Eight minutes after Robinson's
two messages—"love to Mars from earth" and "God is love"—went
crackling across the ether, Prof.
A. M. Low, well known scientist, received an undecipherable message in telegraphic code over his
radio.

Low had invited a United Press
correspondent and several friends
to wait at his home in an attempt to pick up an answer to Robinson's messages. The party gathered in front of the fire, told ghost stories and drank toasts to the planet Mars.

Suddenly dots and dashes came
in over the radio.

"It was a very mysterious message," Low said. "It is hardly
likely that it could have been Mars, however. I must confess I do not know who sent it. One
an ordinary Morse message, but
a long series of undecipherable
dots and dashes. For example, there were eleven dots followed
by three dashes."

Layout.

The Circleville stock yards, operated co-operatively by farmers
of Pickaway-co., were visited Tuesday by delegates from the Ohio
Live Stock Co-operative Association, Ohio Farm Bureau, National Livestock Producers association,
National Livestock producers
Feeder Pool and Eastern States
Co., and other livestock cooperative marketing concerns subsidiary to the Ohio farm bureau.

After looking over the farm bureau home, Harry J. Briggs, service manager and H. S. Lewis,
county agent, discussed with the delegates the set-up in Pickaway-co., and the methods employed here in the livestock marketing program.

Those receiving the delegates were J. B. Stevenson, president of
the livestock board of the farm bureau; George Gearhardt, John Fry and Harry Reiterman.

the delegation left for Washington,
C. H. to visit the yards of the Fayette-co. producers, under the direction of J. H. Jefferson, manager of the cooperative association
there.

Those making the trip with the delegates were Edwin C. Rector, John Fry, Harry Reiterman and County Agent H. S. Lewis.

CHANGE HOMES

The Logan Gas Company Tuesday announced the following changes of residences:

Ralph Graumlich moved into 1027 S. Washington. Frank Thomas moved from this property to 777 S. Court-st. James Denman has moved into the apartment located at the Bargain Store on W. Main-st.

Girl Pilot Flirts With Death

Piloting a tiny Waco plane, Eleanor Smith, 17, Long Island society girl, flew under all four of East River bridges—the Queensboro, Williamsburg, Manhattan and Brooklyn—to give Manhattanites the greatest thrill of recent years. The splendid action photo shows Miss Smith (inset) in her craft immediately after diving under one of the spans.

Falters Elsewhere, Reports Indicate.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Except
here in Chicago where Governor Smith achieved a great personal
triumph, his western campaign has
his admirers, who are now placing their hope for his success entirely upon his battle on the Atlantic seaboard.

Massachusetts, New Jersey and Maryland may almost be said to hold the fate of Smith in their
keeping. If he should carry them
it is conceivable he would win;
without at least two of them it is
the judgment of most impartial
observers of this unique campaign.
Chicago still is echoing the cheers and enthusiasm which Smith aroused here a few days
ago. Republicans concede him the city. It is normally Republican
but it is wet and it is for Smith.
It admires Smith and loves him.

enthusiasm rapidly diminishes.
Few believe he can carry Illinois
due to the strong down-state Republican vote.

The surrounding states which
the United Press correspondent
has just travelled through show,
except Wisconsin and Nebraska,
little likelihood of going for Smith.
Inmate Republicanism, religion and prohibition are counted upon to save them for Hoover. Both Dakotas, Minnesota and Iowa are apparently somewhat doubtful and if Senator Norris, as is expected, declares emphatically for Smith this week, it may turn the state Democratic.

RECEIVES HONORS AT LAW COLLEGE

CINCINNATI, O., October 24—Among students in the College of Law, University of Cincinnati, receiving honors in the fall campus elections is Lawrence U. Jeffries, of Circleville, who was chosen representative of the third-year law students to the Law College senate.

Jeffries had also been nominated for the presidency of the third year law class, but lost to William Kelly, of Cincinnati. With 167 students in the College of Law, this branch of the University has a record enrollment.

IVIE GETS PAROLE FROM MANSFIELD

The clemency board granted 115 inmates at the Mansfield reformatory paroles, it was announced Tuesday.

Among them was Earl Ivie, of Pickaway-co.

Ivie pleaded guilty to burglary and larceny in August, 1927, and was sentenced to the reformatory for not less than three years. He is said to have broken in Friedman's store, W. Main-st.
He came to Pickaway-co. from Indiana, according to information received at the clerk of courts.

Salamander Found Making Residence Near Power Plant

A pumpkin show exhibit in Class Q came in on a slow freight Tuesday afternoon. Just a few days earlier and it would have been one of the chief attractions of displays grown in Pickaway-co.

It was a spotted salamander that was brought into the office of The Circleville Herald by Leonard Lytle, accompanied by C. T. Gilmore. He found it in the water near the electric power house by the old gas house on W. Mound-st. The tailed amphibian was confined in a pickle jar. It is the size of one of those escaped alligators, but its back is smooth and covered with distinct black spots.

The salamander, which in stories is supposed to be able to live in fire, was running true to form when it had taken up its winter quarters near the gas house. It is just something else to worry about when the season rolls around, and it is time to start swimming in the creeks.

INTIMIDATED BY GANGSTERS

Chicago Citizens Are Learning Not To Ask Police Protection.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—If someone kidnaps one of your children, slugs you at the polls, changes your vote or hurls a beer bottle at your head from the dark recesses of an alley, just go along your way and don't complain about it.

That policy of dealing with outlaws is coming to be accepted as the part of wisdom in Chicago.
Complaining to the police about the wrongs of your fellow-man has become a dangerous business.
Its hazards are impressively demonstrated by a long series of terrorist incidents which show to what lengths the underworld is likely to go to avenge itself against the citizen who complains.

Today, for example, special guards were dispatched to the home of Frank Ranieri, whose "offense" against the underworld consisted of attempting to prosecute the men he believes kidnaped his 10-year-old boy, Billy, several weeks ago.

"You'll have to do something to protect me," the father told police. "Fred Pettiti is going around telling people that my boy and I will never live to testify against his brother."

Angelo Pettiti is in jail awaiting trial as a conspirator in the kidnaping.

Similar intimidation has required the assignment of guards to witnesses against the 15 men on trial for sluggings, shootings and other acts of violence in the "bloody" 20th ward during the April primaries.

Several of the witnesses against the so-called "Eller henchmen" are reported to have been induced by anonymous letters and threats to leave town until the trial is over. Others have come into court and testified that their homes are being picketed at night and that beer bottles have been thrown at them from alleyways while on their way home at night.

SMITH GAINS NORRIS' AID

Governor.

George W. Norris, Republican, of
dacy of Governor Alfred E.
Smith in a speech at Omaha, Saturday night, Frederic C. Howe,
executive secretary of the Progressive league for Alfred E.
Smith announced today.

Norris has refused to endorse Herbert Hoover, his party's candidate, but until now he had not indicated his attitude toward Smith.
He has been campaigning for progressive candidates for the senate
and congress in the northwest, avoiding discussion of national
issues.

Because of his influence in his
own state and in the northwest, Senator Norris' declaration of his
support of Governor Smith is expected to be an outstanding development of the campaign.

The progressive league said that
a national radio hook-up had been arranged to broadcast Norris'
speech over the Columbia chain.
Norris is scheduled to speak from 9 to 10 p. m., Eastern time, or 8 to 9 p. m., Central time.

Senator Norris will devote his address to a discussion of the position of the two presidential candidates on national issues, Howe's

DEATH IS CHEATED; NOW FACES COURT

WALKERVILLE, Ont., Oct. 24.
After a spectacular battle with death today 3,000 feet in the air, during which his student companion, Don Strevett, 20, was catapulted to the ground, R. H. Soundy, airplane pilot faced arrest by provincial authorities for failure to strap himself and the student into the plane.

Strevett, a novice who lacked a few hours flying time for his license, had the control when the plane slipped into a nose dive and overturned, Soundy told police.
Both fell from the machine, Foundy said, but he managed to grasp a strut and climb back. Just before the plane crashed Soundy managed to regain control.

EAGLE PASS, Texas, Oct. 24.— Col. Charles A. Lindbergh begins his second aerial visit to Mexico today. Before retiring last night, the famous aviator said he would fly into Mexico at dawn, carrying two passengers. He intends to spend several days there hunting bear and resting at La Bahia ranch.

Auto Filled With Merchandise
and Firearms When Seized By Officers.

Three young men said to be on
a pilgrimage of plunder through
the middle west, had their journey stopped Wednesday morning
Deputy Carl Porter picked them
up on the Darbyville pike a short distance from town, where they were stopped by two flat tires.

The trio was riding in a Chrysler roadster said to be stolen from Sprouse-st, Bloomfield, N. Y. The
car was stolen Sunday morning.

ROB CIGAR STORE

On their way through Marion,
O., Tuesday night they held up a
cigar store on the outskirts of the town but were unable to give the
name of the store Sheriff Davis
said. On that haul they secured
the sheriff were carrying a small
arsenal, consisting of an old army 45 calibre pistol, two 32 calibre revolvers and a .22 calibre revolver loaded with "shot" shells.

The boys gave their names as George Timko, Walter Pope and Edward Kwaikowsky, all of Bloomfield, N. Y.
Deputy Carl Porter was told about
the car and when he and the sheriff arrived on the scene the trio
was asleep. In the roadster the
officers found cigars, cigarettes,
hams, and meat, all of which is
Marion.

The gas for their journey to Pickaway-co was secured by draining tanks along the highways, the youths said.

At the time of the arrest the
car had a New Jersey license, and
the boys told the sheriff they had changed the tags.

COURT ORDER RELEASES HIM

Clifton Reichelderfer Freed From Jail In Habeas Corpus Action.

Clifton Reichelderfer, well known farmer near Circleville is at liberty Wednesday under habeas corpus proceedings instituted by Charles H. May, attorney, pending trial Friday for alleged reckless operation of a motor vehicle.

Tuesday, Reichelderfer figured in a collision with Arthur Strawser at Mound and Scioto-sts, both cars being damaged.

Wednesday, Arthur Strawser swore out a warrant charging Reichelderfer with reckless operation of a motor vehicle and he was arrested and brought before George Strawser, father of Arthur for trial. He was fined $5 and costs and was committed to the county jail until the fine and costs were paid.

Charles H. May, his attorney, then filed the habeas corpus proceedings for Reichelderfer before Judge Curtin and he was released from the county jail.

Attorney May said the justice has no right to try cases in which he has an interest, such as this case in which his son is involved.

MARKET SYSTEMS WILL BE STUDIED

Co-operative Plan Will Be Examined During Columbus Meeting.

Ohio's system and development of cooperative livestock marketing will be studied by leaders in the movement from all livestock territory of the United States who will attend a group of meetings at Columbus on October 23 to 26, says a report received at the office of the Pickaway County Farm Bureau. In fact, says the report, Ohio will be the national center of a cooperative livestock marketing business which totaled $130,000 last year.

Directors of the National Live Stock Producers' Association, an organization with cooperative sales plans on 13 of the more important livestock markets of the country and subsidiaries handling order buying and feeder livestock, will meet at the Farm Bureau building on Columbus on Wednesday, October 24.

On Tuesday, preceding this meeting, visitors from other states will tour several Ohio counties. The plans worked out by Ohio farmers for concentration of their livestock for cooperative sale will be studied by these men who will visit such points at Washington, H. Sabina, Greenfield, and Circleville.

On Thursday, following the national association's meeting, will be a meeting of the National Live Stock Producers' Feeder Pool Association through which thousands of feeder cattle and lambs are being brought annually from western range and market to corn belt farms.

Directors of the Eastern States Live Stock Association, a subsidiary order buying service unit of the national live stock association, will meet on Friday, October 25. This unit, developed in Ohio and on eastern markets, was recently expanded to make its service national. It is designed to give packers as an order buying agency on the chief livestock terminals, and has also been developed from country concentration points of Ohio and Indiana directly to packers.

Fight Graft Wallows In Doldrums of Dispar

ENTHUSIASM CONSPICUOUS BY ABSENCE

Public Indifferent To Claims of Fisticuff Artists—Tex In Florida.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—The fight game is as idle as a painted Joe Beckett upon a painted canvas.

The good ship "fisticuffs," which for seven seasons sailed the seven seas of financial success with golden sails a-billow and the hatches fairly popping with prosperity in the doldrums. Captain Tex has gone below and the crew doesn't know what to do about it.

The honey-laden breezes stirred up by the demand of the cash customers for seats, which used to keep the cauliflower craft cleaving the crest of one wave of certified checks after another, have died away.

From 1921, when Rickard introduced his first "battle of the century" to a $1,625,580 audience, until 1928, when the three leading boxing promoters of the United States all lost heavy money, the fight game reached its peak and then fell flatter than a British heavyweight.

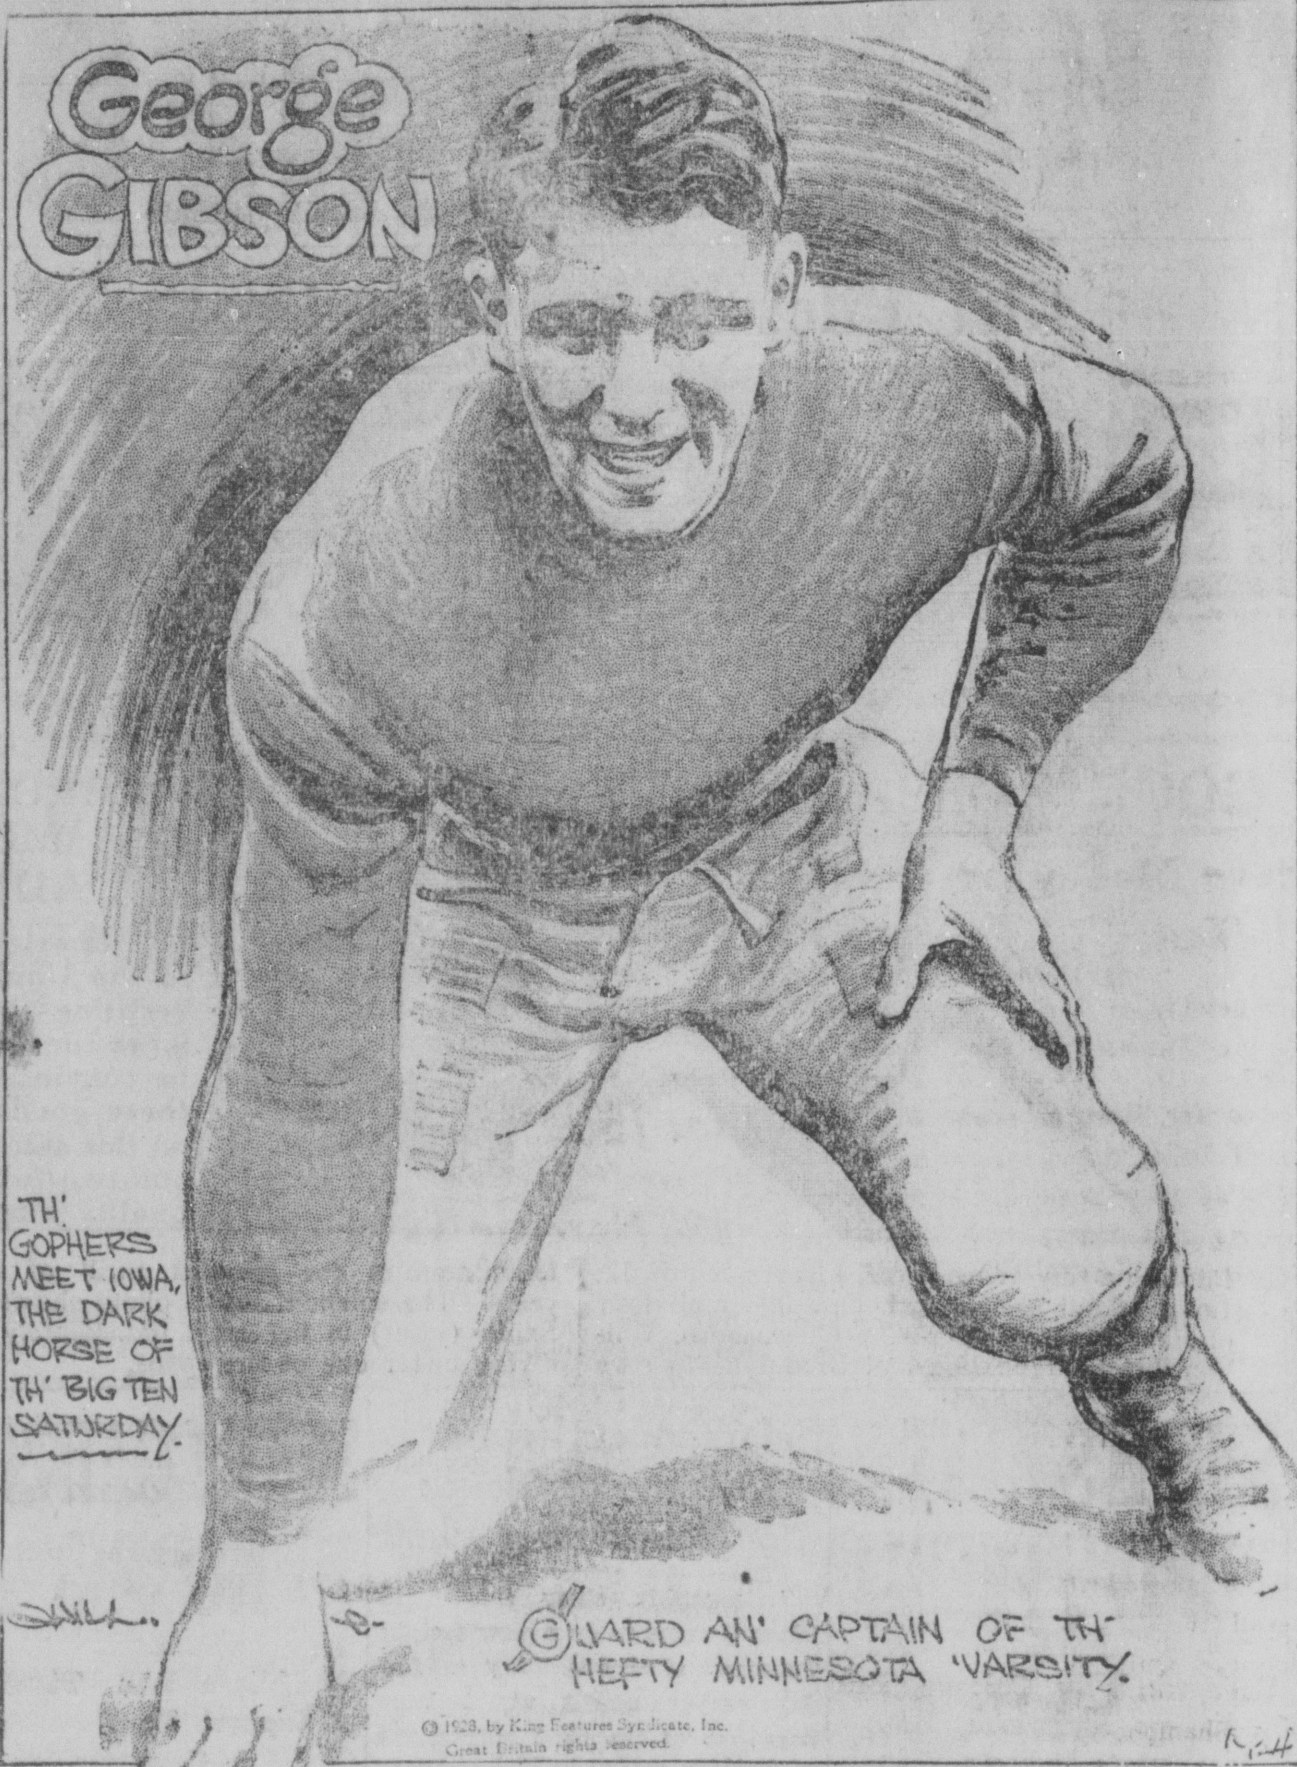

ONE CHAMP READY
Right at the moment, there is but one champion prepared to defend his title, only one promoter able to pay him to do so, and probably very few fight fans who care very much one way or another.

There is no heavyweight champion, and if all the contenders were put together, "retaining the best features of each," the result wouldn't be so much.

The light heavyweight champion won't fight in his class and the middleweight champion can't.

Joe Dundee, welterweight champion, has agreed to meet Young Jack Thompson in Madison Square Garden on Nov. 16, but the titleholder and his hand-carried manager, Maxie Waxman, still are fussing about the ticket prices. Thompson, coming in over the welterweight limit, flattened Dundee in Chicago a few weeks ago, only to have his own woolly head all but knocked off by little Jackie Fields shortly thereafter. So the first of the indoor season's championship fights is no particular bargain, even at the more popular prices now prevailing.

The lightweight champion won't fight lightweights and the featherweight champion won't fight Americans and there is less public interest in the still lighter divisions than in the middle name of Abdel B. El Ouafi.

TEX IN FLORIDA

Tex Rickard, who is by no means stone deaf where the tinkle of a cash register is concerned, has strained his ears for sounds of public enthusiasm until they are as much like cauliflowers as those of any of his performers. In the midst of "a silence you 'most could hear," the great promoter folded his golf pants and stole away to Florida. That is the difference between Rickard and the other promoters who do it for a living. All his eggs do not necessarily need to be golden.

There once was a superstition in fistic circles that the public "always for heavyweights," especially if the heavyweights are of the sort to do a little falling themselves. At the moment, not even the prospect of modified mastodon murder evokes enthusiasm with a cash background.

PUBLICITY PALPITATES

The first of the indoor shows of the season on Nov. 5 features Paulino Uzcudun, the bungling Basque, and Otto Von Porat, and when one hears that the Norwegian is being billed as "the deadliest puncher in the heavyweight division" one realizes that the poor old division has certainly lost its wallow.

Roberto Roberti, who works for Humbert J. Fugazy, the Ebbses Field optimist, in the summer time, has been offered a sum of real money to meet Knute Hansen under Rickard's auspices, but has just about decided to go home and be decorated by Mussolini before losing any more ribs or teeth in his newly chosen profession. Jack Sharkey is conveniently incapacitated, Leo Lomski, an expectant father, has retired until December, George Godfrey is taboo with Tex and Tom Heeney still has pocket money.

RIFLE CLUB WILL BE FORMED HERE

There will be a meeting at the Armory, Thursday, Oct. 25 at 7:30 p.m. for the purpose of organizing a rifle club. Anyone interested in small bore shooting is invited and urged to be present at this meeting.

The National Rifle Association was organized and incorporated in 1871 and has, for more than half a century, watched over the interests of the shooters of America.

The object of the National Rifle Association is to educate the youth of the nation in marksmanship and to encourage marksmanship throughout the United States, particularly among civilians.

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY

Alton Marsters, half-back on Jess Hawley's Big Green football team at Dartmouth and Ken Strong, New York University luminary, have topped the field in points scored in the East's early season football games.

Each player has figured prominently in victories for the two schools. Strong is who practically defeated Fordham single-handed, scoring two touchdowns and adding four points from placement after touchdowns. Marsters led the Dartmouth attack against Allegheny with three touchdowns, after running wild against Norwich in the opening game of the season for the "Big Green."

At the beginning of the season it was predicted that Marsters would be Hawley's ace in the hole. Marsters was expected to earn a niche alongside those occupied by such open field wizards as Grange, Gipp, Slagle, Eckersall, Kaw and Mahan. If his present speed is indicative of what to expect throughout the season, he will undoubtedly live up to all expectations. Many conservative critics will tell you that Marsters isn't far short of Red Grange right now.

"TIGHT-ROPE" ARTIST

No man that ever played football has anything on Marsters when it comes to "tight roping" down a sideline without edging outside the boundary line. He has an abnormally long stride almost a gallop, that carries him right over a tackler's dive. In order to

SMOKE MAGIC

Here's Some Smoke Magic You Can Do With a Nickel

Converting nickels into dimes or quarters by sleight-of-hand is interesting. It's phony, of course. But here's a trick that's genuine. You can do it: Lay a nickel on a cigar counter. Measure what it usually buys in a cigar. Then ask for a Havana Ribbon and see the value your nickel attains!

Here's a cigar, men, that's been famous for thirty years. Its production has risen by millions. Wise experience and the use of nothing but ripe tobacco from heart to wrapper have so marvelously bettered this cigar, there's simply nothing else in the wide world to compare with it for the price.

It's mellow, mild, fragrant. Not a tinge of bitterness. Not a trace of "fatness." No "scraps" or short ends to fray or crumble in your mouth. No, sir! Long filler only—like you find in higher priced cigars. Give it a chance. Don't forget the magic words—"Havana Ribbon." Also sold in Practical Pocket Packages of five cigars.

minated in his scoring all three touchdowns for the Violets. He gained almost half of the 218 yards credited to the New York team. Strong did the New York kicking and passing, in addition to his ball carrying.

Against Fordham, the work of Strong was nothing short of brilliant. He scored two touchdowns, one on a fifty-five yard and passed to Follet for a third.

In the early season practice sessions, Strong was the only back that measured up to expectations on "Chick" Meehan's eleven. At that Strong was not lauded as being the greatest back in the metropolitan district. He was expected to be a vital spark in the Violet attack with his running, kicking and passing, all above the ordinary. However, since the first game with Niagara, when all the other backs failed to do anything out of the ordinary, Strong was forced to the front and since then has been the most consistent performer on the team.

ON THE SIDELINES

MADISON, WIS. — Old Man Gloom resigned supreme in the Badger football camp today. The reason for the cloud of pessimism was the suspension of Gene Rose, half back, and Joe Kresky, guard. "Disciplinary reasons," was the cause given and no further comment was forthcoming. Both are third year men and have two "W" sweaters.

ANN ARBOR, MICH. — Football life is just one injury after another for wolverines. Today John Totzke, Coach Wieman's punter par excellence, is laid up with a twisted ankle. And Saturday the Badgers come here for the annual battle. Holmes or Wheeler, one or both, are scheduled to do the kicking for the Michigan team.

LAFAYETTE, IND. — Purdue also has the "fearing fever" after Coach Phelan watched the freshmen, using Chicago plays, rip off large and sundry gains against the Varsity. Radical changes in the line-up Saturday are promised unless there is a chance for the better. Virtually the entire university was expecting to invade Chicago for the week-end battle.

CHAMPAIGN, ILL. — Coach Bob Zuppke faced a stiff task this week in rounding out the Illini for the game with Northwestern Saturday. Necessity for hard practice in preparation for the Indiana game last week made the time short for pointing this week. Richmond, star center, will be back in the line-up after becoming eligible the first of the week.

MINNEAPOLIS — "Stop Mc-Lain" is the watchword at the Minnesota camp this week. All practice is being shaped to that end. Iowa and Minnesota meet Saturday and the plunging Indian is said to be in his best.

NEW YORK — Coach Chick Meehan has given the New York university football team a shake-up in an effort to bolster the violet forward passing attack for the Colgate game Saturday, replacing Jinx O'Herin at quarterback with Archie Roberts. The change sacrifices 25 pounds in weight to the N. Y. U. backfield but Meehan hopes to beat the team, which last year held the Violets to a tie, with an aerial attack devolving around Roberts.

PHILADELPHIA — The latest shift in the Pennsylvania varsity has sent John Ball to end in place of Sullivan. Other changes may be made in the team before the navy game Saturday, which Coach Lou Young considers one of the hardest of the season despite the navy's weak record.

ITHACA, N. Y. — Howard Johnson, Cornell fullback, probably will call signals in the Princeton game Saturday. The squad will leave for Princeton Thursday night. The trip will be the first a Cornell team has made to Princeton since 1905.

HAMILTON, N. Y. — Colgate has devised a new series of plays for use against New York university Saturday, and forward passes are expected to figure prominently in the new offensive. E. sophomore star, may star back.

HAIPOVER, N. H. — month's latest find is Edd who continues to shine in every position in the of Coach Hawley. With men on the casualty list, a shortage of reserves.

ANNAPOLIS, MD. — If out of its slump Coach I ran has reverted to teaching fundamentals all over in preparation for the vana game.

PRINCETON, N. J. — Princeton varsity scrimm, minutes against a team of college stars yesterday and two touchdowns. Al Witt, American center in 192, Keck, all-American tackle, and Fudge Neidinger all can tackle at Dartmouth years ago, lined up against Princeton varsity.

Cascara is Your Doctor's Choice

Perfect regularity is possible today, and to all of us. We have cascara in ideal form; the very delightful-tasting candy Cascaret gives us pure cascara. It has helped at least a million people to habitual regularity. Millions of others, unfortunately, have stuck to stronger things and acquired only the laxative habit.

Your first Cascaret will illustrate how THOROUGH the laxative is, after all next surprise will be the time before you need it.

Eventually, you'll see the rizing tends to make the move thereafter of their cord!

A modern drug store many laxatives, but for good the druggist would have you ask for the little box of Cascarets thing else.

Cascara is Your Doctor's Choice

Perfect regularity is possible today, and to all of us. We have cascara in ideal form; the very delightful-tasting candy Cascaret gives us pure cascara. It has helped at least a million people to habitual regularity. Millions of others, unfortunately, have stuck to stronger things and acquired only the laxative habit.

Co-operative Plan Will Be Examined During Columbus Meeting.

Ohio's system and development of cooperative livestock marketing will be studied by leaders in the movement from all livestock territory of the United States who will attend a group of meetings in Columbus on October 23 to 26, says a report received at the office of the Pickaway County Farm Bureau. In fact, says the report, it will be the national center of a cooperative livestock marketing business which totaled $130,000 last year.

Directors of the National Live Stock Producers' Association, an organization with cooperative sales in 13 of the more important livestock markets of the country and subsidiaries handling order buying and feeder livestock, will meet at the Farm Bureau building on Columbus on Wednesday, Oct. 24.

On Tuesday, preceding this meeting, visitors from other states will tour several Ohio counties. The plans worked out by Ohio farmers for concentration of their stock for cooperative sale will be studied by these men who will visit such points at Washington, H. Sabina, Greenfield, and Circleville.

On Thursday, following the national association's meeting, will be a meeting of the National Live Stock Producers' Feeder Pool Association through which thousands of feeder cattle and lambs are being brought annually from western range and market to corn farms.

Directors of the Eastern States Company, a subsidiary order buying service unit of the national co-operatives will meet on Friday, Oct. 26. This unit, developed in Ohio and on eastern markets was recently expanded to make its service national. It is designed to give packers as an order buying agency on the chief livestock terminals, and has also been developed from country concentration points of Ohio and Indiana daily to packers.

ATLANTA SCHOOL

(By OAK TURNER)
The P. T. A. meeting was held Wednesday, Oct. 17, in the high school auditorium.
Rev. Swearingen of Williamsport, gave a very instructive talk along the line of P. T. A. Music was furnished by the school orchestra. Martha French gave a reading and played a piano solo. Refreshments consisting of ice cream and pie were served after the program.

More parents should attend the P. T. A. meetings and become acquainted with the teachers and find out what the school is doing.

The water system was completed during the past week. Water is now supplied direct from the well by air pressure to four drinking fountains in the buildings and one outside. The system is made by the National Utilities Corporation, division of Westinghouse Air Brake, Milwaukee, Wis. The system was installed by D. S. Dennis, agent, Sugar Grove, O.

The P. T. A. paid for the four bunnies. These will be enduring monuments of P. T. A. in Atlanta schools.

The first six weeks of school was completed Oct. 12, and the grade cards were issued on Wednesday, Oct. 17.

Honor roll requirements have been changed slightly. An average of G with one E extra is still required, but this E cannot be made in music. This was done, because of the fact that music is taught only half time.

The following pupils have met the necessary requirements for the honor roll the first term:
Second grade, Janet King, Edwin Dean, Juanita Skinner, George Skinner, Viola Reeves, John Peck, Alfred Conaway, Thomas Straley, Ruth Bentley.

Fourth grade, Bettigene Campbell, Ray Creighton, Martha Donahue, Bertha Louise Duvall, Martha French, Addie Ruth Skinner, Martha Wright.

High school, Mildred McCune.

Basket ball practice will start Friday, Oct. 26.

BIBLE THOUGHT

REBELLIOUS CHILDREN—Woe to the rebellious children, saith the Lord, that take council, but not of me; and that cover with a covering, but not of my spirit, that they may add sin to sin.—Isa. 30:1.

PRAYER—Lord, oft times we have been rebellious, but in sorrow now we turn to Thee. Accept us and keep us.

WHERE LAW IS NARROW

The old chap was about done for. He was a Vermont stone-cutter by trade, but age and ill health had weakened him so that he could work no longer. Homeless and penniless, he had drifted to Boston, hoping to be sent to jail for the winter so he might have a bed and something to eat.

All of this he explained to the judge, who listened sympathetically and prepared to sentence the man to three months in jail.

Then, however, it developed that the old man had not lived in Boston for 30 years. Under the law, therefore, he could not be found guilty of vagrancy. The police were obliged to turn him loose—to wander off nobody knew where, and to do nobody knew what.

At first glance this looks like just another common case of legal hair-splitting. But it is something more than that. It is a symptom of the way a great many things are done by a great many of us in this year of enlightenment, 1928.

Most of us are pretty well-intentioned. We would really like to live by the Golden Rule, if only it were not so hard. We would really like to be kind to the helpless, to relieve misery, to treat strange unfortunates as our brothers.

But most of the time it is too much trouble. We prepare to act and find that our hands are tied. We are not big enough or wise enough to cut the bonds of habit and inertia. So we retain our good intentions, and the person we intended to help gets it in the neck, regardless.

Consider this Boston episode. The judge on the bench, the prosecutor and the policeman were all sincerely anxious to help the pitiable old wanderer. Not one man in the court where he was arraigned wanted him to continue in his misery.

Yet, in the end, he might as well have been surrounded by enemies!

Nobody there was capable of cutting the knot and seeing to it that the old man got relief. Everybody wanted to—but there was an idiotic legal technicality in the way; and everybody knows that this nation stands second to none in its respect for the law. So the old chap was out of luck.

One of these days we'll learn that good intentions are not enough. Not enough? They're worse than nothing at all. Of course, it may have been a great solace to the old stonecutter, as he wandered off to meet whatever variety of starvation, weariness and loneliness the fates might have in store for him, to remember that the people who sent him away had given him their best wishes.

AN EXCITING FINISH

Everything points to a hot windup of the political campaign. People who have not voted for years, find issues that seem to touch them personally. They emerge from their shell of civic isolation, and are getting registered and talking politics. A good deal of hot shot is being poured back and forth. Some people are saying things that indicate that they need cooling applications of ice to their burning heads.

By the time the campaign ends, much violent talk can be looked for. People should not become too much "het up." The country is safe. No one is going to walk off with it in his vest pocket. If things don't go right, the people will speak again in 1930 with a congress that will stop any tendencies that may be complained of.

While over excitement on politics is not desirable, yet it is far better than cold indifference. It does the American people good to wake up and think about their government, even if they get a slight access of temperature.

WHO SAID "WHISPERING" CAMPAIGN?

Broadway Love

by Thomas Edgeslow

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

JANET WILDE is the young and pretty daughter of Fenimore Wilde, famous Broadway actor. His son, Frank, is an idler and spendthrift, and Janet mothers both father and brother. Fenimore Wilde dies, leaving his children penniless, and while Frank goes South to visit friends Janet obtains a job with Leonard Quigg, a temperamental musician who loves her, and a brilliant young doctor, David Churchill, who is married. Her employer insults her and she resigns to accept the position of secretary to Dr. Churchill. During this time she has added to her list of friends Chester Quigg, the artist uncle of Leonard Quigg, and his daughter, Alice. One evening David Churchill admits he is in love with Janet and is contemplating a divorce. Janet is thunderstruck and tells him she does not love him. She promises to help him by giving up her position. In the meantime Chester Quigg asks Janet to live at the studio and help manage Mrs. Churchill, jealous of Janet, makes slurring remarks and Janet tells David she will not see him again. That night her brother, Frank, arrives home, broke and badly in debt. Leonard Quigg gives Frank $1,000 to pay off the gambling debt, but makes him promise not to tell Janet.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXVIII.
JANET sat down and let the world go by. But this was only for a few days of indecision, when she felt as though she could never rest sufficiently. Meanwhile, Frank went to stay with friends of his in Flushing, presumably coming up to the city every day to look for a job. Somehow, friends were always willing to entertain Frank.

It was Alice who made Janet decide what she was going to do. "I came to see if you could be persuaded, Janet," she sighed, as she sat down. "I really don't know what's going to happen up at the studio if you don't, but I think it only fair to warn you that whatever Daddy pays you will be very irregular. Quiggs are always irregular, Daddy says, and when it comes to payments, and he will probably be extra-irregular with you because he only pays people he doesn't like. And he's doing a portrait for a great deal of money, if only he gets paid for it, out the lady, who lives on Riverside Drive, has a wart on her neck, and that will probably spoil everything. Daddy says he will put it in, and that it is a strong touch of realism, and I know that if he puts it in they won't take the portrait. And grandmamma has been specially difficult because I can't make an omelette as good as the one you gave her, and she says she's unwanted and unloved; so it's all very difficult and upset, and Daddy says it would take an Empress of tact to smooth down everybody, in his mind regard and you are it—the Empress of Tact he means. But—"

"Stop! Janet cried. "Darling! What a speech! You win! And never mind about the salary!"

And as if to make things easy, that very day Janet discovered that an elderly friend of hers was willing to take over the apartment furnished. As the old lady had a phone of her own, Janet gave instructions for her own private number to be transferred to her learn how to look after them with your father, Miss Janet? It will seem like old times."

Janet herself supervised the preparations for the evening meal. Mrs. Quigg had retired to her own room in one of her more trying moods, and she was weeping for absolutely no reason. The tears passed, and she became sulky.

Just before dinner, Leonard arrived. He had heard that Janet had decided to take up her quarters at the studio, and he brought with him a mass of violets.

"How nice of you, Leonard!" Janet thanked him. "I adore violets."

"Leonard can be very thoughtful at times," Alice put in. "Stop being a hundred and three—and be your age!" Leonard laughed at her. He seized her in his arms, and then threw her bodily onto a couch. Alice laughed uproariously, for at times she became a veritable child.

There was a small dining room near the kitchen, and dinner was announced by the sulky maid.

"Grandmamma doesn't want any dinner," Alice reported as she returned from her Grandmother's room, "so I'm afraid, Leonard, it's no use your offering an arm."

Janet hurried to the old lady's room.

"No thank you, I have no appetite," Mrs. Quigg refused the idea of dinner. "In this atmosphere, my dear, where I'm grudging a mouthful of nourishment, I can't eat—not that I ever have any appetite."

"I am so sorry because that will make it impossible for me to dine," Janet said unblushingly. "I shall have to go without dinner, Mrs. Quigg, because if you don't mind my being frank about your family, I, too, feel I am unwanted, and I only enjoy my dinner when I have someone intellectual to talk to."

With a great deal of secret amusement Janet watched Mrs. Quigg devour a fruit cocktail, two helpings of lamb with potatoes and cauliflower, a custard pudding and a little cheese. After that she asked why there was no candy on the table.

Dinner, as Chester Quigg privately informed Janet, was a distinct success that night.

"I have never known the old lady in a better mood," he told her. "She will probably sleep after dinner, though she will be fretful later on."

He went off to his club, and Alice was busy in her room doing some tasks for her governess, so that Leonard and Janet found themselves alone in the big studio.

He played to her on his violin, and then came and sat near her.

"It's going to be difficult," he announced suddenly. He got up and prepared to go.

"What is?" Janet asked languidly.

"Keeping up the silly pretense that I don't adore you!" he answered.

He took Janet's hands and kissed them, and went softly out of the room. For a long time she sat there—dreaming.

Presently Alice joined her, when there was a furious ringing of the doorbell. Janet ran to answer the imperative summons. Outside stood a man.

"Did you telephone for an ambulance?" he demanded.

The pictures can't show the loveliness of her skin and the gleaming of her dark brown hair, which the judges say, swayed decisions.

"When I consider how people admire my hair now and how it was not long ago," says Gray, "I can't help telling about Dandruff had nearly ruined it. It had gotten stringy, dull, and falling out. My scalp was so uncomfortable. Then a friend started on this method of for the hair which is all the among New York girls. Now, put a little Danderine on my each time I use it. Since I been doing this regularly, all druff has disappeared; my scalp become perfectly comfortable; healthy; my hair has stopped falling out and has become soft, and pretty."

Danderine quickly removes oily film from your hair, gives it its natural color, gives it lustre than brilliantine. It the hair easy to dress and keep in place. It stops dandruff. It oily and doesn't show. At a stores, 35c. A delicately fragrant necessity for the well-groomed girl.

WHERE LAW IS NARROW

The old chap was about done for. He was a Vermont stone-cutter by trade, but age and ill health had weakened him so that he could work no longer. Homeless and penniless, he had drifted to Boston, hoping to be sent to jail for the winter so he might have a bed and something to eat.

All of this he explained to the judge, who listened sympathetically and prepared to sentence the man to three months in jail.

Then, however, it developed that the old man had not lived in Boston for 30 years. Under the law, therefore, he could not be found guilty of vagrancy. The police were obliged to turn him loose—to wander off nobody knew where, and to do nobody knew what.

At first glance this looks like just another common case of legal hairs-splitting. But it is something more than that. It is a symptom of the way a great many things are done by a great many of us in this year of enlightenment, 1928.

Most of us are pretty well-intentioned. We would really like to live by the Golden Rule, if only it were not so hard. We would really like to be kind to the helpless, to relieve misery, to treat strange unfortunates as our brothers.

But most of the time it is too much trouble. We prepare to act and find that our hands are tied. We are not big enough or wise enough to cut the bonds of habit and inertia. So we retain our good intentions, and the person we intended to help gets it in the neck, regardless.

Consider this Boston episode. The judge on the bench, the prosecutor and the policemen were all sincerely anxious to help the pitiable old wanderer. Not one man in the court where he was arraigned wanted him to continue in his misery.

Yet, in the end, he might as well have been surrounded by enemies! Nobody there was capable of cutting the knot and seeing to it that the old man got relief. Everybody wanted to—but there was an idiotic legal technicality in the way, and everybody knows that this nation stands second to none in its respect for the law. So the old chap was out of luck.

One of these days we'll learn that good intentions are not enough. Not enough? They're worse than nothing at all. Of course, it may have been a great solace to the old stonecutter, as he wandered off to meet whatever variety of starvation, weariness and loneliness the fates might have in store for him, to remember that the people who sent him away had given him their best wishes.

Everything points to a hot windup of the political campaign. People who have not voted for years, find issues that seem to touch them personally. They emerge from their shell of civic isolation, and are getting registered and talking politics. A good deal of hot shot is being poured back and forth. Some people are saying things that indicate that they need cooling applications of ice to their burning heads.

By the time the campaign ends, much violent talk can be looked for. People should not become too much "hot up." The country is safe. No one is going to walk off with it in his vest pocket. If things don't go right, the people will speak again in 1931 with a congress that will stop any tendencies that may be complained of.

WHO SAID "WHISPERING" CAMPAIGN?

Broadway Love

by Thomas Edgewood

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

JANET WILDE is the young and pretty daughter of Fenimore Wilde, famous Broadway actor. His son, Frank, is an idler and spendthrift, and Janet mothers both father and brother. Fenimore Wilde dies, leaving his children penniless, and while Frank goes South to visit friends Janet obtains a job with John Monague, theatrical impresario. She makes friends with Leonard Quigg, a temperamental musician who loves her, and a brilliant young doctor, David Churchill, who is married. Her employer insults her and she resigns to accept the position of secretary to Dr. Churchill. During this time she has added to her list of friends Chester Quigg, the artist uncle of Leonard Quigg, and his daughter, Alice. One evening David Churchill admits his love for Janet and is contemplating a divorce. Janet's father, struck and tells him she does not love him. She promises to help him forget her by giving up her position. In the meantime Chester Quigg asks Janet to live at the studio and help manage Mrs. Quigg's mother, a domineering creature with strange illusions. Mrs. Churchill, jealous of Janet, makes slurring remarks, and Janet tells David she will not see him again. That night her brother, Frank, arrives home, broke and badly in debt. Leonard Quigg gives Frank $1,000 to pay off the gambling debt, but makes him promise not to tell Janet.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXVIII.
JANET sat down and let the world go by. But this was only for a few days of indecision, when she felt as though she could never rest sufficiently. Meanwhile, Frank went to stay with friends of his in Flushing, presumably coming up to the city every day to look for a job. Somewhere, friends were always willing to entertain Frank.

It was Alice who made Janet decide what she was going to do. "I came to see if you could be persuaded, Janet," she sighed, as she sat down. "I really don't know what's going to happen up at the studio if you don't, but I think it only fair to warn you that whatever Daddy pays you will be very irregular. Quiggs are always irregular. Daddy says, when it comes to payments, and he will probably be extra-irregular with you because he only pays people he doesn't like. And he's doing a portrait for a great deal of money. If only he gets paid for it, but the lady, who lives on Riverside Drive, has a wart on her neck and that will probably spoil everything. Daddy says he will put it in, and that it is a strong touch of realism, and I know that if he puts it in they won't take the portrait. And granddaddy has been specially difficult because I can't make an omelette as good as the one you gave her, and she says she's unwanted and unloved; so it's all very difficult and upset, and Daddy says it would take an Empress of tact to smooth down everybody in his mind regards and you are with the Empress of Tact."

"Stop!" Janet cried. "Darling! What a speech! You win! And never mind about the salary!" And as if to make things easy, that very day Janet discovered that an elderly friend of hers was willing to take over the apartment furnished. As the old lady had a phone of her own, Janet gave instructions for her own private number to be transferred to her bedroom in the Quigg studio.

There were a few days of frantic preparations and packing, and then the Critic moved into her new quarters, where a royal welcome awaited them. Janet's difficulties began almost on her entrance, for the Critic and old Mrs. Quigg took an instant dislike to one another. "I don't see how you can have a nasty dog cluttering up the place!" Mrs. Quigg complained when the Critic had refused to leave anything to do with her. "Of course, if you've come here as a sort of working housekeeper, I shall have to put up with it. In these days, the servant problem is such a difficulty."

"Oh, Granddaddy!" Alice exclaimed in horror. Janet was tremendously amused, and sprang quickly to Alice's rescue. "Don't be silly, darling!" she smiled at the little girl. Then she turned to the old lady. "I do hope, Ma'am," she said with a grave concern, "that I shall give you satisfaction. It will be such a pleasure to serve you, and I will try my best."

Completely mollified, the old woman smiled her approval. "Very fitting! Very fitting indeed!" she mumbled. "I see that you and I shall get along."

Janet discovered that an utterly incompetent and sullenly colored maid was drawing excellent wages for inefficient service. "Do you mind if I try to find someone else?" she asked Chester Quigg. "Look around the studio," he bellowed at her. "If you see any little thing of mine that you would like—and that sketch of Brooklyn Bridge is masterly—it's yours, little lady, if you will get rid of that female! I'm afraid of her, and I'm man enough to admit it. Again good luck seemed to be smiling on Elizabeth, with whom she had always kept in touch; she learned that Peter was working as a Pullman porter and that Elizabeth would be delighted to come and work for Janet. "You understand," Janet said over the wire, "that you will be working for an artist, Elizabeth, and that you will live out. You get that point?" Elizabeth's laughter over the phone was comforting. "Didn't I learn how to look after them with your father, Miss Janet? It will seem like old times."

Janet herself supervised the preparations for the evening meal. Mrs. Quigg had retired to her own room in one of her more trying moods, and she was waiting for absolutely no reason. The tears

passed, and she became sulky. Just before dinner, Leonard arrived. He had heard that Janet had decided to take up her quarters at the studio, and he brought with him a mass of violets.

"How nice of you, Leonard!" Janet thanked him. "I adore violets." Leonard can be very thoughtful at times. Alice put in, "Stop being a hundred, and three—and be your age!" Leonard laughed at her. He seized her in his arms, and then threw her bodily onto a couch. Alice laughed uproariously, for at times she became a veritable child.

There was a small dining room near the kitchen, and dinner was announced by the sulky maid. "Granddaddy doesn't want any dinner," Alice reported as she returned from her Grandmother's room, "so I'm afraid, Leonard, it's no use your offering an arm."

"Sometimes it works," Leonard explained to Janet, "if I go and bring her formally in to dinner. Suppose you try it?" Janet hurried to the old lady's room.

"No thank you, I have no appetite," Mrs. Quigg refused the idea of dinner. "In this atmosphere, my toes, where I'm grinding a mouthful of nourishment, I can't eat—not that I ever have any appetite."

"I am so sorry because that will make it impossible for me to dine," Janet said unblushingly. "I shall have to go without dinner, Mrs. Quigg, because if you don't mind my being frank about your family, too, feel I am unwanted, and I only enjoy my dinner when I have someone intellectual to talk to."

With a great deal of secret amusement Janet watched Mrs. Quigg devour a fruit cocktail, two helpings of lamb with potatoes and cauliflower, a custard pudding and a little cheese. After that she asked why there was no candy on the table.

Dinner, as Chester Quigg privately informed Janet, was a distinct success that night. "I have never known the old lady in a better mood," he told her. "She will probably sleep after dinner, though she will be fretful later on."

He went off to his club, and Alice was in her room doing some tasks for her governess, so that Leonard and Janet found themselves alone in the big studio. He played to her on his violin, and then came and sat near her. "It's going to be difficult," he announced suddenly. He got up and prepared to go.

"What is?" Janet asked languidly. "Keeping up the silly pretense that I don't adore you," he answered.

He took Janet's hands and kissed them, and went softly out of the room. For a long time she sat there—dreaming.

Presently Alice joined her, when there was a furious ringing of the doorbell. Janet ran to answer the importunate summons. Outside stood a man.

"Did you telephone for an ambulance?" he demanded.

ATLANTA SCHOOL

(By OAK TURNER)
The P. T. A. meeting was held Wednesday, Oct. 17, in the high school auditorium.
Rev. Swearingin of Williamsport, gave a very instructive talk along the line of P. T. A. Music was furnished by the school orchestra. Martha French gave a reading and played a piano solo. Refreshments consisting of ice cream and pie were served after the program.

More parents should attend the P. T. A. meetings and become acquainted with the teachers and find out what the school is doing.

The water system was completed during the past week. Water is now supplied direct from the well by air pressure to four drinking fountains in the buildings and one outside. The system is made by the National Utilities Corporation, division of Westinghouse Air Brake, Milwaukee, Wis. The system was installed by D. S. Dennis, agent, Sugar Grove, O.

The P. T. A. paid for the four bunnies. These will be enduring monuments of P. T. A. in Atlanta schools.

The first six weeks of school was completed Oct. 12, and the grade cards were issued on Wednesday, Oct. 17.

Honor roll requirements have been changed slightly. An average of G with one E extra is still required, but this E cannot be made in music. This was done, because of the fact that music is taught only half time.

The following pupils have met the necessary requirements for the honor roll the first term:

Fourth grade, Bettigene Campbell, Ray Creighton, Martha Donahue, Bertha Louise Duvall, Martha French, Addie Ruth Skinner, Martha Wright.

Sixth grade, Jean Overmire.

High school, Mildred McCune.

Basket ball practice will start Friday, Oct. 26.

The water system which has been talked of in the community for several years has at last matured. The National Fresh Water system was installed into the public school building by D. S. Dennis of Sugar Grove, Ohio. It gives us all the convenience of a city water system, with the additional advantage that our water is always delivered direct to the faucets "fresh from the well" cool and refreshing. We can truthfully say nothing about the building has furnished more comfort than has the National Fresh Water system.

Sour Stomach Sign of Carelessness

POLITE society frowns on those whose stomachs "grumble." For careful people heed this warning that the contents of the stomach is sour and fermenting. Those who don't, may some day develop gastritis—or even ulcers.

Nine times out of ten indigestion and allied stomach disorders are due to excess stomach acid, which impedes normal digestion and forms sour gases that cause intense pain. To restore good digestion you must eliminate this cause. A tablet of "Pape's Diapiesin" after eating or when pain is felt will instantly neutralize the acidity and banish all digestive trouble and pain.

So, do buy a 60-cent package of "Pape's Diapiesin" today. This not only means instant relief, but by soothing, healing and strengthening your weak and disordered stomach a little "Pape's Diapiesin" keeps your digestive system healthy and helps to prevent various disorders.

New Dresses for The School Girl By MAE MARTIN

Thousands of mothers with daughters of high school or college age, have problems like this Little Rock, Arkansas mother. She says: "I don't believe I could have put my daughter through the last two years of high school and college without the help of Diamond Dyes. Dresses long out of style and faded were made new with a package or so of Diamond Dyes and the addition of a few dozen buttons and a little braid. Some times two dresses were combined and brought up to date in lines that gave no hint of their past. People never knew they were rodyed when I used Diamond Dyes. They never take the life out of cloth or make it limp. They always make things fresh, crisp and bright." Diamond Dyes are true dyes, like those used when the cloth was made. Tinting with them is easy as bluing and dyeing only takes a little more time. Trust on Diamond Dyes and save disappointment. They never streak, spot or run. My handsome new book, "Color Craft," will help you with your clothes and home furnishing problems. 64 pages of dollar-saving suggestions, fully illustrated in colors. It's FREE. The wedding march was rendered by Everett Hardell of Boston, recently returned from musical studies in Rome and Milan, and the Rev. Truman Heminway, of Epiphany church, Winchester, officiated.

POLITE society frowns on those whose stomachs "grumble." For careful people heed this warning that the contents of the stomach is sour and fermenting. Those who don't, may some day develop gastritis—or even ulcers.

Nine times out of ten indigestion and allied stomach disorders are due to excess stomach acid, which impedes normal digestion and forms sour gases that cause intense pain. To restore good digestion you must eliminate this cause. A tablet of "Pape's Diapepsin" after eating or when pain is felt will instantly neutralize the acidity and banish all digestive trouble and pain.

So, do buy a 60-cent package of "Pape's Diapepsin" today. This not only means instant relief, but by soothing, healing and strengthening your weak and disordered stomach a little "Pape's Diapepsin" keeps your digestive system healthy and helps to prevent various disorders.
